Subject: Invite for nominations for the sixty-seventh International Meteorological Organization (IMO) Prize

Your Excellency,

I have the honour to invite WMO Members to submit nominations for the sixty-seventh IMO Prize giving due consideration to the need to pursue the Organizational goal of gender equality through greater gender diversity of candidates.

The Executive Council at its the seventy-fourth session amended the IMO Prize nomination and selection criteria and process as follows.

The prestigious IMO Prize is awarded annually to individuals for outstanding work achievements in the field of meteorology or in any other field referred to in Article 2 of the WMO Convention, Basic Documents No. 1 2019 edition (WMO-No. 15), with a focus on the most recent five years in at least one of the following: (i) advancing weather, climate and water science and/or its application to society; (ii) leadership of the international weather, climate and water community, with a particular emphasis on furthering the purpose of WMO; communicating weather, climate and water science and/or increasing public engagement in the field of weather, climate and water science and its application.

Detailed information on the IMO Prize, nomination procedures and nomination form are provided in the annex.

The sixty-seventh IMO Prize will be awarded by the WMO Executive Council in June 2022. The deadline for submission of nominations is Friday, 20 May 2022, a month in advance of the session of the Executive Council to enable due consideration. Nominations received after the deadline will not be considered for the sixty-seventh IMO Prize but will be retained for subsequent awards during the current financial period of the Organization (2020-2023). Candidates submitted for a given prize shall normally be retained on the list of candidates for subsequent prizes during that financial period.

The number of candidates submitted by a Member for a given prize should not exceed three. In the case of three candidates, at least one of them shall be a woman.

A list of previous winners is available on the WMO website.

INTERNATIONAL METEOROLOGICAL ORGANIZATION (IMO) PRIZE

The International Meteorological Organization (IMO) Prize is the most prestigious prize awarded by the World Meteorological Organization (WMO), a specialized agency of the United Nations. The title for this Prize originates from the non-governmental International Meteorological Organization, which was established in 1873; the IMO was the predecessor of the intergovernmental WMO, which came into being in 1950.

The IMO Prize consists of:

- (a) A fourteen-carat gold medal 57 mm in diameter. It bears on one side the official WMO emblem and on the other side the Latin inscription "Pro singulari erga scientiam meteorologicam merito";
- (b) A monetary award of CHF 10 000; and
- (c) A parchment scroll.

ELIGIBILITY

The IMO Prize is awarded annually to individuals for achievements and for outstanding work in the field of meteorology or in any other field referred to in Article 2 of the WMO Convention, which appears on page two of this form, with a focus on the most recent five years in at least one of the following: (i) advancing weather, climate and water science and/or its application to society; (ii) leadership of the international weather, climate and water community, with a particular emphasis on furthering the purpose of WMO; communicating weather, climate and water science and/or increasing public engagement in the field of weather, climate and water science and its application.

NOMINATION PROCEDURES

The number of candidates considered for the Prize in any given year should not exceed three, submitted by one Member. In the case of three candidates, at least one of them shall be a woman. Members are invited to give due consideration to the need to pursue the Organizational goal of gender equality through greater gender diversity and may nominate qualified male and female individuals from any Member State or Territory.

A nomination received after the deadline indicated in the circular letter (one month prior to the opening of the Executive Council session) shall not be considered at that year's Executive Council session, but shall be taken into consideration for all subsequent Prizes during that financial period.

The name of candidates presented by Members (Minister of Foreign Affairs, Permanent Mission of Member State with WMO or the Permanent Representative of Member State/Territory with WMO) will be referred to the IMO Prize Selection Committee, if they do not fall into any of the following categories:

- (a) Members of the Executive Council who, as electors, are not eligible for the award during their term of office as members of the Executive Council;
- (b) Candidates who are no longer alive on the date of their nomination. The award may nevertheless be made posthumously to a candidate who passed away between the date of nomination and the award of the Prize.

Nominee

Include name, professional and home mailing address, present occupational title and institutional affiliation. Please attach to your nomination email along with the signed Nomination Form a curriculum vitae or résumé, a list of publications (all scanned as PDF) and a summary of accomplishments (MS Word file).

Summary of accomplishments and video presentations

Provide a brief statement (1 to 2 pages) of the individual's achievements in the fields for which the award is proposed as indicated in the Eligibility section. This statement is requested electronically in MS Word format to facilitate translation. Be precise and factual and follow the guidance provided in the Nomination Form.

Please also submit two short video recordings supporting the candidate: one video by the Permanent Representative or the relevant nominating authority; and the other video by the candidate themselves. The videos should last no longer than 5 minutes each and be in one of the official WMO languages.

Length of candidacy

The length of candidacy spans the four-year financial period of the World Meteorological Organization. A candidate submitted for a given Prize but not chosen for the award of that year is retained on the list of candidates for subsequent prizes during that financial period. The current financial period of WMO for which the nomination is to be considered is from 2020 to 2023.
